BORIS JOHNSON

ALEXANDER BORIS DE PFEFFEL JOHNSON (BORN 19 JUNE 1964)

Johnson gained a King's Scholarship to study at Eton College, the elite independent boarding school near Windsor in Berkshire. In July 1999, Johnson gained editorship of The Spectator.

Conservative safe seat in Henley Oxfordshire became Johnson's in the 2001 general election as he became their MP. Then in July 2007, Johnson became Mayor of London in the 2008 mayoral election.

After Theresa May's resignation Johnson became British Prime Minister. This made Johnson the second prime minister to be born outside of the British Isles.

In October 2019, Parliament was dissolved and an election called for 12 December. The election resulted in the Conservative Party and Johnson winning over 43% of the vote and a parliamentary majority of 80 seats—Their biggest since 1987.
